Adventures in Teaching Online
by the Centre for Online and Distance Education

Speakers:
Atiya Mahmood, Department of Gerontology
Carol Edwards, Beedie School of Business
Eric Beauregard, Department of Criminology
Rebecca Cobb, Department of Psychology

Description:
Would you like to transform your face-to-face course to the online format? Rethinking your classroom teaching in such a way is an adventure like Alice going through the looking glass, which may be momentarily disorienting. In this workshop four faculty members will take you on their course design journeys, including lessons learned. You will have an opportunity to further inquire about their challenges and successes that will help you reflect on your own course design.

Light refreshments will be provided.
